Subject: Tax Analysis for Annexation C-763

The amount of property tax levied each year against a parcel of real estate is the product of the parcel's assessed value and its total tax rate. While annexation does not affect assessed value, annexation can have a significant impact on a parcel's total tax rate. The following tables show the expected impact of annexation on the total tax rate of the parcels in the subject case. These tables are for demonstrative purposes only and are not a guarantee of annual tax levies or amounts.
