FACTS AND FINDINGS:

Current truck condition

The current truck is 20 years old and was intended to be a 15-year service truck. The capabilities and equipment used in the bomb technician community have increased over the years, as have the duties and expectations of an accredited bomb squad and its certified technicians. The current truck's build and equipment were operationally appropriate at the time but are now outdated and in need of replacement.

The truck's size and layout do not support having multiple people on the scene of incidents, often discussing options and plans both inside and outside the vehicle. The amount of equipment on the truck has grown, forcing equipment to be separated between the truck and an added trailer. Technicians often must unload equipment at the scene to create space inside for personnel to operate. At 10 years old, critical digital equipment inside the truck is also overdue for replacement.

Benefits of the new truck

The new bomb truck will provide the team with a fully updated platform, providing more space for personnel to operate, have a better interior layout, and include updated equipment. The new truck will also provide updated computer/electronics equipment, allowing for updated services and dependability.

BACKGROUND:

The Salem Police Bomb Squad is a federally accredited public safety bomb squad. The team has served Salem and assisted surrounding agencies and counties for 52 years. The team comprises 6 certified bomb technicians who provide a variety of explosive material safety-related services to the community and agency partners in Salem, Keizer, and Polk County, serving a population of approximately 295,944 over 800.49 square miles.

This special unit is unique within the Salem Police Department as its primary mission is solely dedicated to safely handling and disposing of explosive materials and devices. Services include the safe evaluation, handling, and disposal of hazardous devices and materials such as improvised explosive devices, commercial explosives, and chemical, biological, or nuclear materials. The team is trained to support other in-state bomb squads, tactical team(s), and criminal investigations units with specialized equipment. Members also provide safety education classes to community groups, city workers, the school district, and health system partners.

Examples of significant calls the team has handled include the serial pipe bombing campaign in 2007, the Woodburn Bank bombing in 2008, a homemade explosives lab in a residential district in 2009, and a hoax improvised explosive device being presented in the Salem Hospital ER in 2019. Since 2004, the Salem Bomb Squad has responded to and handled 1,007 activities/incidents within its response area. Since 2022, the team has averaged over 70 activities/incidents per year.
